ETABS 9.7.4 Crack + Key Latest.HOW COULD YOU? As the dust settles from the current budget fiasco, before we begin to analyse the various cuts and how they're going to effect us all, one thing that stands out are the cuts to health. Commenting on the NHS Budget (NHSB) yesterday, Dr Callum explained why the cuts to health would have a really bad effect on us. He said: "The worst-case scenario for the NHS is if we take a long hard look at the economics." So here is the sum of all the cuts in the budget, and who will be affected, and why we should care. Cuts to NHS hospital charging This is a cut from £710 million to £760 million. The budget states: We have capped the use of Hospital of the Year charges at £200 per night or 10% of the total bill for a patient's stay. This includes NHS, PFI or commercial capital costs and funds 100% of trust debt, we also pay the section 48 fee of £120 per week to NHS Hospitals. Therefore, there is no increase in the cost of a hospital's service. This is expected to have a "positive impact of around £2.1bn". The government says that the move is to "protect the NHS from unnecessary financial pressures." Will not affect patients in the main In the case of cancer patients, hospital charges are already capped, this was a proposed amendment to the increase, which did not pass. Will not affect services in the NHS The budget said that this was "not expected to have an impact on services in the NHS." Will only affect hospitals This relates to hospitals who charge above the NHS maximum. This is already capped. Will cost £2.1bn The government said that the move was "expected to cost £2
