In the 13th episode of Robot Chicken, Graham McTavish, Colin Murdock, and Reggie Watts will be joining the ranks of the best and brightest voices of Robot Chicken. It's the Dream Team! Okay, there's not exactly a parade or a gold medal ceremony, but there will be a one-on-one interview for the crew members of Robot Chicken. I hope you have a chance to see Robot Chicken Sundays after Next Sunday night when it airs on Cartoon Network at 8:30 on Sunday nights. You can also listen to the first three episodes of next Sunday's episode through the Robot Chicken podcast feed by clicking on this link. If you like the show, rate and review the show at iTunes, and click on the show's links at the iTunes Store and at Amazon, and tell your friends and family about the show. See you on Sundays!

AGENCIES CHANNELS KEYWORDS WASHINGTON/NEW YORK (Reuters) - The White House on Thursday proposed a $6.7 billion settlement for the U.S. government's claims in lawsuits involving victims of the Sept. 11 attacks, with about $2 billion of that sum paid out within one year. The deal is due to be considered by U.S. District Judge Alvin Hellerstein in Manhattan on Wednesday. Under the deal, victims' lawyers would be paid a total of $3.4 billion by Sept. 1, and Justice Department lawyers would receive roughly $3.3 billion, the White House said. The deal would create a fund to pay claims for deaths, injuries and illnesses associated with the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, and in addition, offer victims a path to compensation for losses associated with the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq. It was the result of a long negotiation between the Justice Department and the lawyers suing on behalf of victims, after years of dispute between the White House and the group of victims' lawyers known as the "September 11th Victim Compensation Fund." The result would resolve a protracted dispute over whether the government should be held responsible for the Sept.
