A: You can try to use this: `awk '{if($0~/Make*Version.*-/){print "1.txt"}}'` file.txt It would display to the screen the lines with Make*Version, if the line ends with - -, print the line. If you want to get rid of the lines you don't need, you should modify the pattern. , that whole five grand that you moved, that went back to an IAM contract, that went from your department then to your department into the committee. What did the committee do with that money? Mr. Stubbs: And I think that might have been it, I couldn't remember. Mr. Carson: It was only $5,000? Mr. Stubbs: Yeah. I can't imagine what they did with it. Mr. Carson: That is the only one that is in the account, there is no evidence of any other money going out of your account. Mr. Stubbs: No, that's what I mean. I don't know what happened to it. I don't think that I ever got a memo. Mr. Carson: So if you knew that you were going to be transferring that money in to the new committee that was being created, you did not think that it was important enough to be put in a memo and passed on down through the hierarchy of the Governor's office as to what this committee was going to be? Mr. Stubbs: I have no memory of it. Maybe it was sent to somebody and I just don't recall. Mr. Carson: So, you don't know whether it was a meeting to do that or not, is that correct? Mr. Stubbs
