Note When I was researching the best video editing software for this book, I ran across a video that I wanted to include in the book. At first, I thought it would be a little tricky, because I don't know KAKAI well enough to include a video. However, I was surprised to find that it wasn't nearly as complicated as I anticipated— _especially_ if you were as comfortable with After Effects as I am. These are the after-effects swatches for creating a basic video project: While it's definitely not as easy as using After Effects, it still is way more complicated than using the simple tools in Photoshop. *  _Kakadu Video Suite:_ KAKAI's video suite includes many of its most popular features: * KAnedo KAnedo allows you to create and edit videos from a program. You can create screensavers, greeting cards, animated movies, music videos, slide shows, and other slideshows. * KAval KAval allows you to create and edit music videos with KAKAI's music-editing and sound-editing features. * KaLoad KALoad is a browser plug-in and browser interface that gives you access to video services including YouTube, Vimeo, and others. * KAquake KAquake is a movie-making tool

Why are you calling? - by Danny Heinrichs As a former tour operator I get the chance to work with a lot of people on a daily basis. I am constantly amazed at the various ways to reach a person. It seems you can call, send emails, post messages, or send direct messages to everyone from the President down. I get the privilege of working with many of the top echelon of business owners in the world, some that you would think would be hard to reach. Usually they are the ones that are the easiest to find and the ones that are least likely to call in the hopes of getting a quote for a million dollar landscaping project. I get many questions on how to contact these people. It's easy, just make a call or send an email. The following are my thoughts on how I would handle some common situations: I tell people to leave a voicemail for this person. While I would prefer that they reply to an email, voicemails are easy to send and the chances are they will pick them up. Some people are afraid to leave a message. I have no problem with that, they can call back if they don't get through. This way they will know to call again or send another email if they have no luck the first time. Some people make promises that they never make, or simply make up excuses as to why they can't get back to you. I always make sure I get the promise, if they are a few days away from making a project delivery, I ask what the hold up is and then I start working on finding the right contacts to find out what is going on. It turns out that this has happened quite a few times. If they are due in a month for a delivery I will start working on getting them on a plane or schedule. There are a lot of jobs that can't wait and I use that as an excuse to get in touch. For the ones that wait, it's a pretty easy conversation and I only ask if they will be delivering on a particular day. If they give me a date, that's great. If they tell me they can't do it, I tell them I understand, and can they please tell me the reason why. It's usually some line-item item I will cover in the cost or just a due date that is more than a few months away. I thank them for giving me a window of opportunity. If they don't want to talk

Q: Which "down voters" are still allowing me to post answers? I had a number of answer upvotes earlier, but then later the value reverted to 0 or a number less than 0. I have lost some reputation as a result and some answers I posted recently have gone unreviewed. Were my answers (at least some of them) down voted by someone else? Because if so, they are not allowed to down vote any more. If that is not the case, then someone is allowing me to post answers even though I have lost some reputation and my answers are not getting reviewed. I do not want this to happen, as I have already lost enough reputation, and have stopped trying to answer questions. I suspect this is a bug, but I'd like to confirm this before creating a question on meta. A: I suspect this is a bug, but I'd like to confirm this before creating a question on meta. Go ahead and ask it on meta, and provide a full description. . Children are said to have a 'kleptomaniac penfriend'. This is a man who likes to steal other people's things.It may be hard to think of a man who steals other people's things and then pretends to be their friend. That's because the Kleptomaniac Penfriend is rare. Mostly found in small remote villages, this man simply makes up lies about his real self, and lists of stolen items. And the victim has no idea that the man who has been his friend and confidant for years is a thief.He has a list of things that he's stolen, and will take your money or your neighbour's things in order to buy what he needs. However, when the victim realises he's been a victim of crime he'll have a difficult time accepting that it's not his fault.And he'll never understand why his neighbour found him attractive.Q: How to check if an xml tag value is null and empty at the same time? I am parsing an xml file in c# and I am struggling with checking for a key of type string. I am trying to check if the result of "data" is neither null nor empty at the same time. I am using XmlReader data data1
