I'm trying to create some WebApi methods for my framework. These are essentially Role enumerations, so I created a class like the one below public class MyRoleEnum : IComparable, IEquatable { public MyRoleEnum(string name) { this.Name = name; } public string Name { get; private set; } public int CompareTo(MyRoleEnum other) { return this.Name.CompareTo(other.Name); } public override string ToString() { return this.Name; } } To be able to call an Enum from a WebApi Controller I created a helper method for it like this public static MyRoleEnum ParseEnum(string value) { EnumHelper.ValidateEnumOrSet(value, "Invalid enumeration value", "enum", "ValueCannotBeNullOrEmpty", typeof(MyRoleEnum)); return (MyRoleEnum)Enum.Parse(typeof(MyRoleEnum), value); } So I can call things like this Controller.MyMethods(ParseEnum("ABC")); when I call the Controller's method I have code like this. public IActionResult MyMethod(MyRoleEnum input) { // do something } When I run the project and debug, the input is null, so the method doesn't get called.
