New character poses For the 3rd time in a row, the latest beta build features our new character pose system, which lets you change your pose while in the game. New poses include a brand new "hunter" pose with a bow in hand and a "thief" pose with a dagger in hand! To get started, open your character-creation screen by pressing Alt and press L (to select a pose). Check out these new poses and more new poses in our full gallery of new beta poses! We've also updated our character pose system with new poses for our Elven, Dragon, and Olfen clans! As we mentioned in our Elden Ring Roadmap (we are going to debut some new art assets in the next beta build. While we can't announce specific images yet, the upcoming beta build will feature new character poses, animations, and other visual updates. Be on the lookout for a new character and pose-centric visual update in the next beta build! Improved character creation In the latest beta build, we implemented a streamlined creation process for new characters. We removed the Chapter 13 slider and put the list of specs that appear when you open the character creation menu in a panel at the bottom of the screen. To create a new character, simply click the Create New Character button at the bottom of the panel and select the desired specs from the list. In addition, we added an "Add a New Clan" button to the bottom right-hand corner of the creation screen. Once you select your new clan and add new specs, you can access your new clan by pressing T (Tab) and clicking the "Add New Clan" button. To change the new character's clan, simply select a different clan from the clan list. Progression and leveling have been slightly updated.

- It will go away after a while as a deprecation vehicle.
- And in this case, it will disappear after 1 month (after all the deprecation vehicle's time has run out).
- It is randomly assigned during character creation.

This idea is something I thought a long time ago after I played FF9. The basic idea I want to work in TT3 is that everyone gets enjoyment off in the game but some people more than others by coincidence. So the game will be more fun for those who play more frequently than others. This guy likes to play games only on the weekdays while his other job is hardcore business work so he doesn't have many time to play. He

One way to remove the critical points of a map is by composing the map with a homotopy and forgetting the new critical values. I have a problem understanding one of the way this process works, though. So I know that if ϕ is a homotopy from f to g , then $h = f \circ \phi$ is a homotopy from f to $g \circ \phi$. Now consider the function $i \circ h = i(f \circ \phi)$, which maps $h(0) = f \circ \phi$ to $i(h(0)) = i(f \circ \phi) = \{f(\phi(0)) : \phi(0) \in I\}$. This function $i \circ h$ is therefore a homotopy from $i \circ h(0) = i \circ f \circ \phi$ to $i \circ h(1) = i \circ (f \circ \phi) = i(f \circ \phi) = \{f(\phi(0)) : \phi(0) \in I\}$
