The game is a retro type of RPG that captures the visuals and gameplay of the classic NES games. If you want to play a simple RPG with the nostalgia of the 90's, this is the game for you. In addition to this, the visuals are stunning and the soundtrack is excellent. Pros: + Gorgeous visuals +

Excellent gameplay, perfectly designed around the controls of the NES. + Orchestral soundtrack can be run/paused in the pause menu. + Multiplayer feature and timing based missions. + Numerous environments. + Simple but fun gameplay. Cons: ? Low amount of spells. ? No quests. ? No playable characters besides the seven that were available in the demo. MY REVIEW Elden Ring Cracked Accounts game: As long as the original IP is still alive, I try to play it. Although I don't like the genre or the graphics, and instead prefer visual novel types of games, I have played this because the game's story is neat, and the soundtrack is nice. Pros: + It's a nostalgia trip for fans of the 90's. + It's simple, but there's a lot of content. + The game's soundtrack is great. + The graphics are amazing! + It's easy to learn and fun to play. Cons: ? The gameplay is very, very simple. ? It's an RPG and its like playing a visual novel. ? The story and graphics remind me of an N64 game. THE NEW FANTASY ACTION RPG. combobox using python Here is the code: The purpose of the code is to take the combo box selections and then paste them into a table in a MS Access file. As of right now I am able to get the Combobox Data at Run time, but I am unable to put that data into the table. Hope you

```
can help me! comboBoxPath = widget.currentText() widget = comboBoxPath.get() table = openpilo t_database.destComboExport() comboBoxPath = table.column()

table.text() = widget A: Your code looks good and should work. However, the table.text() syntax is incorrect. You are trying to set the text of the table. I'm assuming you are referring to the name of the table. If that is the case, then your code should be something like: table = openpilot_database.destComboExport() table.name = widget

However, I would recommend against using the widget namespace for this. It is likely to lead to problems with dependency injection. I would recommend instead setting the name and then getting that name using the table.name attribute. Then you would be able to do something like: for cb in self.combo: table.comboName = cb.currentText()
