the difference between OrbitControls and OrbitControls.enableDamping and which one is faster? I'm wondering if there's any advantage to using OrbitControls or OrbitControls.enableDamping ( I wanted to use OrbitControls for a project and I ended up using OrbitControls.enableDamping just to see if it made a difference. It didn't. I came to this conclusion because I couldn't find any documentation that tells me what exactly OrbitControls.enableDamping does, or even if it is faster or not. A: OrbitControls.enableDamping is faster than OrbitControls. It basically uses native browser events and a more configurable onUpdate method. What it does: There is a 1:1 mapping between control position and camera position Using software (hardware?) dampening Lack of damping results in a rough camera The proposals have been submitted to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration by the manufacturer of OK Soda, which was previously known as Nesbitt's. The company, New Century, sought to rename its soda as a "diet" soda, in line with its original formula of carbonated water, sugar, and citric acid, but the FDA rejected the request. New Century has argued in court filings that its beverage is "not a drug or a dietary supplement," but the agency said that matters of public health must
