Autoantibodies to Schwann cells in Guillain-Barré syndrome. Guillain-Barré syndrome (GBS) and chronic inflammatory demyelinating polyneuropathy (CIDP) are both relatively common autoimmune diseases of the peripheral nervous system. The majority of patients with GBS, unlike patients with CIDP, have a good recovery. To test whether the beneficial outcome in GBS is related to the immune response against Schwann cells, the plasma of 14 consecutive patients with GBS and 16 consecutive patients with CIDP were tested for antibodies against Schwann cells. IgG antibodies against antigens of purified human peripheral nerve were assayed by radioimmunoprecipitation, with the use of specific antisera to low-molecular-weight myelin proteins and high-molecular-weight adhesion molecules. IgG antibodies against antigens of purified human peripheral nerve were found in 2 (14%) of the GBS patients compared with 5 (31%) of the CIDP patients. Circulating antibodies against Schwann cells were associated with a favorable outcome in GBS. The addition of circulating anti-Schwann cell antibodies to an in vitro model of GBS nerve cell-T cell interaction may account for the delayed onset and incomplete recovery in GBS. Is your credit card bill fair? As you may have noticed, credit card companies are actively trying to get some consumers to reconsider using the plastic, as banks struggle to make up for an estimated $90 billion in overdraft charges in 2013. If you start to get overwhelmed with these fees, as many of us have, you can avoid them if you start limiting your use of debit cards. If you’re going to be out on the town, you should always carry plenty
