Apple uses an open source operating system .Thameside East Thameside East is a local government district in the southeast of Greater London, England. The town of New Cross, one of the most deprived areas in the United Kingdom, is within the district. It is bordered by the boroughs of Bexley, Bromley, Greenwich and Lewisham to the south, and by Newham and Waltham Forest to the east and north respectively. The district has a local council with 36 councillors and four, now defunct, district councillors. This currently consists of the Cabinet, as the main management structure for the Council, and the following: Councillors The councillors are: See also London Borough of Newham Districts of London List of district councils in Greater London References External links London Borough of Newham Thameside District Profile Category:Districts of the London Borough of Newham Category:BromleyQ: ODATA Provider for a WCF web services I am working on a project that should be able to send a request to an ODATA server (Open Design Unified Data Access, odata.org). I looked into OData.NET but my project is developed on.NET 4.0 and the latest version of OData.NET is 2.0. I tried looking for an alternative, but found nothing. I also tried to use the other odata provider 4.0, but failed. The only thing I could find was OData.ODataLib and that seems to be for older versions of.NET... Does anybody know a viable alternative? Any suggestions? A: You might try using the same version of the OData Protocol which is supported by the OData.Client. The OData.Client package has two parts; the source code and a set

I want to serialize the interface, but have run into a problem. If I have a common interface for creation of a list that some other class can use, they will only have use for a list of a specific element type. So, I have a list that is capable of holding any element, but then I have a way to encode that in the interface. I'm thinking that I want to use IEnumerable and IEnumerator, but I'm unclear about what exactly I want out of the interface. What I'm thinking is to give the interface a default constructor to instantiate a generic List. IEnumerable has a GetEnumerator() method, but I'm not sure what to do with that (since I only want to be able to do something useful with the interface if I'm implementing it).
