"The implementation of 'HyperMotion Technology' in FIFA 22 means that in-depth work has been done to create a much more responsive and reactive player model," said FIFA technical director Alan McQueen. "With the continuous work on this feature, we can be confident that FIFA 22 will show players of all shapes and sizes on the pitch as they truly are." This new player model was created through the close collaboration of FIFA's Game Engineers and FIFA's most sophisticated human motion capture partners, Vicon. Every player is equipped with more than 50 motion capture sensors, which determine where they move in relation to their opponent and their defensive team-mates. The sensor-studded player suits are designed to track a player's movement throughout the match and to capture the player's reactions to any actions that happen in front of him, including scoring, receiving a pass, tackling, tackling someone else or off-sides. Vicon Motion Solutions are a world leader in professional sports motion capture, with clients including the NFL, PGA Tour, PGA Championship and NHL. In 2013, Vicon's most recent motion capture campaign featured the biggest names in the sporting world, including England's Gareth Southgate and Sergio Ramos, who starred as man of the match in Spain's Euro 2016 triumph. The Vicon team collaborates with FIFA's Global Development team and the AI team to create a player model that is flexible and adaptable so that it can accurately represent the nuances of players and match conditions. This year's FIFA video game also features a new and more realistic camera system, which in-turn gives players a new, immersive viewing experience. The game camera system is seamlessly integrated into the game engine and provides a high-quality wide-angle and bird's-eye view of the pitch. This camera will be used in FIFA 22 to provide an unprecedented level of authenticity in gameplay. "When we started working on FIFA 22, we set the goal of creating a football video game where you could virtually be any player and feel like you are in the middle of the action," said Marc Rames, Creative Director at EA SPORTS. "When you are on the pitch, you have to feel like you're truly part of the team. We're excited to finally be able to show the world this." "Together with EA

What's new in Fifa 22:

- Create moves with ease - Boost your players with a collection of new moves and new techniques that make everything easy to play and simple to master.
- New Stance Control System - The finer touches of your passing game are your feet. Using newly enhanced and responsive controls, you can now fine-tune your passing by translating your touch and controlling the direction, height, and spin of each pass. And with more defined control over when and how passing happens, the entire game feels quicker, easier, and more rewarding.
- Improved passing mechanics - No aspect of passing in FIFA 22 is more important and responsive than the hands you use to do it. Touch your players with more precision and feel to leverage years of animators' experience into new and more refined passing moves.
- New Destinations - Better connected longer shots, improved long-range goal kick and powerful curling efforts, and an overhauled long-range shot for defenders shows the new direction of these shots. Progression shots that are hard to receive like lobs and hard to one-time shots are now surrounded by a new distance cone, which changes speed dynamically throughout the shot.
- Superstars - Show your team some love with the new Instinctive Behaviour system, which boosts how players adapt and respond to opponents and teammates.
- New Button Control - New button assignments have been created, making button sliding and sliding through balls more precise, so you'll have more control in tight spaces.
- Adjustable Controls - Seamlessly address the optimisation of touch, passing, body control, shot accuracy, and the responsiveness of various actions.
- Improved Pick-Up Play - Tackle is deepened, created, and competed through tight spaces with new Pick-Up Plays that will allow you to pick up the ball on any angle, in any situation.
- Improved Defending - Mute opponents and other defenders when they unexpectedly leave your defensive line - a new defender high and far in front of you enables you to both defend and watch the sideline without being seen. Positioning is more precise and realistic, and the new Defending system lets you control when you call for a defensive line.
- Play freely in any manner - Take free kicks from any angle, with cover at your back, beyond the box, and in the air. New markers allow you to head the ball naturally and with more confidence. Use aerial shots, from the ↻

FIFA, the world's best-selling sports video game franchise, is a wholly owned EA product. FIFA 17 is the most popular sports video game of all time. FIFA 22 Adds Innovation to Every Game Mode Inspired by the fact that the data-driven ball physics system that made FIFA 17 revolutionary has now been made available to the community at large, FIFA 22 brings innovation across the game modes. Whether you're playing FIFA Ultimate Team, FIFA 19 The Journey, or head to your local pitch, there are numerous ways for you to express your individuality and creativity and make a real impact on the pitch. New Pass Modules The Momentum Attribute has gone free and every player has their own individual Momentum Rate that can be modified in the Attributes section of their player data screen. Not only does Momentum affect passing and shooting, but it can also be used to help players apply pressure to opponents and control the pace of the game. The individual passing styles of the Momentum Modules in FIFA 22 were created with the help of data from the community and expert data scientists, and are the most polished sets of passing styles currently available. Momentum Modules Momentum Modules are created using data from the community and applied to players during the validation process. Each player now has 5 modules that are included in the default game presets for each of the 6 base skill types. To access the Momentum Modules, navigate to Moments and go to Customize Moments. The Momentum Modules are in under Moments. You can also switch to the Player view and click on a player to access the Momentum Module. SELOU The SELOU line out is no longer a user-controlled penalty and is now the result of a foul, if the player makes contact with the ball outside the penalty area. Players will perform an automatic shoot on the penalty, with no additional controls. Momentum also now affects the high and low speed distributions of a player. Momentum - Shooting Momentum now affects the speed distribution of players who shoot the ball while in possession. The distribution can be configured in the Shooting Momentum section of the Shooting Modules in Moments. Momentum - Defending Momentum now affects the speed distribution of the player defending when the ball is played towards their goal. The
