Abstract: The objective of this research paper is to study the impact of the data communication on the change of performance of internal combustion engine due to the congestion of data. In internal combustion engine, data is exchanged between electronic control unit and driver to perform operation of engine. The data communication can take place either by wire or wireless means. The quality of data transmission is dependent on the level of congestion of the data between data transmission and reception end. The congestion of data is due to the increased volume of the data in whole of data communication. To show the impact, we studied the effect of the data communication in internal combustion engine by measuring the response time. The paper consists of the following two sections. In the first section, we discussed the basics and related
