IMPA Marine Stores Guide - Mike's Abode for Manual Search. .1. Field of the Invention The present invention generally relates to a print control apparatus. In particular, the present invention generally relates to a print control apparatus that stores print data and a print control method. 2. Description of the Related Art Various types of printing apparatuses that use ink cartridges, such as ink-jet printers, can be used to print data, such as characters, images, and the like on a recording medium, such as paper, cloth, film, or the like, using an inkjet printing method. In recent years, inkjet printers have been used for many purposes, for example, they are used in printing apparatuses such as a digital photo printer, a printer, a copying machine, and the like, in addition to a personal computer or a word processor. Ink cartridges have to be supplied with ink in order to perform printing. However, the ink supply to the ink cartridges is time-consuming, and thus, it takes time to achieve the print operation. As a result, a plurality of ink cartridges is supplied from one ink tank, and the ink to the ink cartridges is supplied from the ink tank through the respective ink cartridges. In this case, in order to prevent the ink from becoming depleted before printing is performed, a print operation is performed as long as the ink level in the ink tank is sufficient. If, in such a situation, printing is not performed for an extended period of time, the ink level in the ink tank may become depleted before the next printing operation. In this case, a warning indicator, such as a light emitting diode (LED), is caused to emit light, for example, to remind the user that the ink tank is low on ink. When the warning indicator is caused to emit light in this manner, the user can replace the ink tank in order to remedy the situation. In such a case, it is necessary to keep track of the ink consumption, by analyzing the ink consumption by each ink cartridge or by each printing apparatus. As a

"I was lucky to have the chance to teach at a university in China. But more than teaching, I appreciated the culture of curiosity in which Chinese students were immersed. At times, some students tried to live through the subject at hand, not by learning, but just 'figuring it out.'"
