A: You are confusing two different things: OpenGL ES ("3D graphics on an android device") and OpenGL ("a graphics library for 2D rendering"). They were not really designed to work very well together You have to use OpenGL just to get any 3D graphics at all on Android. Then you might as well use GLUT, which is GLUE and completely miserable anyway. (2D graphics are best rendered using OpenGL/GLUT in most cases. If you really need it, there's GLFW, but it's not free.) If you go down the OpenGL route, it is pointless to render anything else on top. GLUT has 2D rendering built in, rendering a button? Maybe. But an army of police cars? Unarguably :) Be aware of GLUT. To use it effectively, you have to study how it works. It's bad design and not at all well documented. If you want something new that you can take off of the shelf, check out Android NDK and Java NDK. Use OpenGL ES API and OpenGL API. That will be the one true path. Update You don't need GLUT anymore for using GL on Android. Android has builtin OpenGL ES support just like iOS does. So, no GLFW or freeGLUT. There is no OpenGL for Android Cepheus Protocol is a server for the Shroud of the Avatar. It is the first server in the Kingdom of Cepheus that allows players to play in the world of Shroud of the Avatar by joining in-world cooperative group sessions known as Expedition groups. Currently it has 3 zones (lands): Southerly, North Western and North Eastern. Players are welcome in any of the zones but if a player chooses to play in the zone of their choosing, they can limit that character to that zone so that players don't fight over zones or players that live in a specific zone may not join another zone. We are currently in the process of running an Exploration group each week so if you want to experience this with us in-world. You can find that on the public calendar page.[Difference of HIV/AIDS risks perception and related influencing factors between drug users and their sex partners in Yunnan Province].
