Dont get me wrong, it is still on my short list, but not as high. New York-based IDT Corp., a subsidiary of Israel's Group 8 Ltd. (TASE:G8L.T), is expecting to break even in the first half of 2015, a year earlier than expected, and plans to finish the year with a net profit of $2.5 million compared to losses of $16.6 million a year ago, the company said on Tuesday. The company is proposing a dividend of $0.05 per share for the second quarter. Group 8 acquired IDT Corp. in September for $132 million after the firm announced it was ending its relationship with Motorola Solutions. IDT's headquarters are located in Manhattan. IDT was formed in 1993 to design and market electronic equipment for paging systems in the radio frequency market. It also developed mobile device products for the global communication equipment market, which includes wireless local area network, fixed wireless, Voice-over-Internet-Protocol and satellite markets. IDT's most successful product has been the FLEX16, an analog wireless communications system that, according to the company, has been in production for over 20 years, with over 5 billion units sold. It's been installed in various commercial and government markets, including casinos, airports, food and beverage distributors and military bases. IDT also offers software solutions for the mobile device and fixed wireless markets, and a number of other products for the global telecommunications market. Group 8 and IDT are both headquartered in Israel, but the initial transaction between the companies included the IDT subsidiary in the United States. In December, the company transferred control of the U.S. unit, IDTC, to a separate company, IDT Acquisition Corp., which was also incorporated in New York. Group 8 is the largest private technology company in Israel with a market capitalization of $8 billion. Its wireless network services unit, comprising Mobinil, previously known as Bezeq, and its telecom unit, comprising UMA, are the two largest wireless internet service providers in Israel. Communicating ideas and knowledge, which is the hallmark of this TEMPEST project, will be the focus at the meeting on Thursday night. All are invited, first come, first serve. No matter which night you come, there will be a speaker/presenter/panelist that you will find engaging and informative. And your tweets, and those of 6d1f23a050
