The Hindu October 8, 2017 by Uma Mitra and Sandeep Dwivedi TIGER ZINDA HAI - A TEENAGE PILGRIM The second national award nominated Hindi film TIGER ZINDA HAI, will hit the screens in December. The story of a 15-year-old boy who decides to make a pilgrimage to the Himalayas on foot to rescue his ailing brother is based on the ancient Indian epic Mahabharata. Stars Rohit

Sharma and Prachi Desai won this year's National Film Award for best child actor for their roles in the movie, their first film. But critics say the movie does not give enough space to an elder brother, with the scene of his illness being the most important event of the movie, almost the entire film revolves around it. The film takes on different perspectives of the Mahabharata, including the callousness of the main protagonist. The actor Vinay Sharma, who plays the younger brother of the lead role, says his character has a lot of depth. The main protagonist is a pilgrim with a dream of returning home. But along the way, his journey is turned into a roller coaster. After being captured by a forest warder, the young man is taken to Delhi, where he is married to a girl. In the capital, he meets a man who is interested in politics. He lives his life as a petty officer in the navy, as well as a beggar on the streets of Delhi, where he encounters the son of a governor. This is only a summary. But most of us have no problem reading a synopsis and knowing if it's our cup of tea,” says Rohit Sharma, who plays the title role in TIGER ZINDA HAI. His character is going through a transformation as a pilgrim, from someone with no worries to a man who is involved in the decisions of his life. “I was surprised at the quality of the language. The dialogue is great. The content of the movie is of an average scale, but the way the director has portrayed a fictional story, gives it a soul,” says Sharma. Rohit has spent time in the Himalayas.

“The movie has given me a very good perspective of life. I spent time with people who lead simple lives. To spend time, it is important for you to have c6a93da74d
