This is a doodle style, retro-like, space game where you pilot a ship through an infinity of space collecting gems to replenish your shields and fuel your ship. The game is inspired by old style arcade games where there was no keyboard or mouse needed to play! You just moved your hands to control the ship and shifted your arms to control the movement. There are no buttons or triggers to press, the game is played entirely with the controller! You will start off with a single ship, but more ships will appear as you collect gems to power them up. The game includes a pre-configured default difficulty for easy access, or you can set it to higher difficulties with the included config files. About Ciem: The game features an open-source toolkit for creating your own games.
